to book.

At the end of another academic year, we should ask:

What is education for?

We all spend a significant proportion of our lives in schools, colleges and universities. Government spends a significant proportion of its budget on education. But what should all that time and money be focussed on?

Join us to hear the opinion of philosopher Dr Jan Bentz

About our speaker: Dr Jan Bentz was born in Germany, completed his schooling in the USA, and did his doctoral studies in Rome. He lectures at the University of Oxford, amongst other places. His areas of expertise include Metaphysics, History of Philosophy, Medieval Philosophy, Thomism, and the Philosophy of Art. He lives in Oxfordshire with his wife and three children
